Baker and Farron. Last night being " fashionable night," a very large and perhaps one of the most select audiences ever assem-pled within our pretty theater, greet-sed Messrs. Baker and Farron in their new play of Hemrich and Hettie. This play, messing and entertaining specialities in Messis, naker and rairon, the former in the characterization of agr-en flutchman, yet not so green after all, and the latter as the Dutch girl, "fistic Stode;" and verdant irishman, "Michael Siagnerty," tresh from the "ould god," we must mention as meriting commendation the very finely-drawn characterization of "Laura Appleby, the banker's adopted duaghter," by Miss Emma Palmer, who, during ner short stay with us, has displayed dramatic genius far above mediocre. Mr. Ketchum was happy as "Aristarches Diggs, insurance agent and reporter," a character which in other hands would hardly have merited notice. The other characters were fairly sustained, and altogather condered, Heisrich and Heits will prove an atractive addition to have and Farron's reportors. These who would sujoy a pleasant of ermon a could attend the matince which be his at one of check sharp this attennous, when Heisrich and Heits will be repeated. week's engagement at the Theatre. Mr. Nobles will be supported by John P. Rogers,dramatic and specialty companion, relative to whose acting the Pitteburg Commercial says: "Mr. Nobles is an actor of great merit, and if ever any man was intended for any special play he certainly was intended for any special play he certainly was intended to play the part he took last evening. Never was any actor greeted with such rounds of applause as he was, and Mrs Mary Mason, who played the part of "Effic Elmore" in the drama. Aside from being a star in her profession, she is never jovely woman, and was quite a ravortic with the audience last evening. To say that each and every member of the company are excellent, and that the most sanguing expectations of the entire and ence were taily resticed, would be to say the truth only. The company has received the most flattering notice afrom the press everywhers where they have given an entertainment, and without doubt they have merited all the praise they have received."

TEXAS.

The Appeal's Editorial on Transporta tion-Dissatisfied Immigrants are Those Who Won't Work.

A Good Lesson Well Told-An Illustration that Ought Not to be Lost-Money as a Medium-

Etc., Etc. From an Occasional Correspondent. FORT WORTH, October 18 - I notice FORT WORTH, October 18 — I notice in your weekly of a date not long past that you close an article against Texas Lumigration by saying that going west to "grow up with the country" was not what it was written up to be, or words to that effect, and urged those disposed to roam to remain on the oid homestead, instead of flying off o loak for the good land, which, the the borken, reced s at your approach There was much sound, practical, good hard ense in that article, and it should be lead, especially by a certain close that desire to emigrate to avoid sound, practical, good hard ense in that article, and it should be read, especially by a certain class that desire to emigrate to avoid work, old-fashio ed cornfield work. Texas has been written to be the poor man's paradise; this is true if he desires to remain a poor man, for he can raise beef and bread sheaper here than in any southern State, and the crimate is less rigorous than any; but in order to get above poverty men must work here as well as elsewhere. All callings that are separated from the cultivation of the soil are full to overflowing. We have in this State clerks, doctors, awyers, mechanics, and artisans of every trade, enough, if they were properly put on duty, to do the numbers of their line for twenty years without relief. Horsee Greeley's "young man go west" has unsettled as many as it has settled, for the reason that the visionary enthusiast is the first or on away with the idea. The hard worker looks well before no moves. He has once worked himself from the ground, and in doing this he learns men and things in a practical way that holds him steady in the moving gale. I write this criticle not to deterior te from my adopted State, for I know there are forces at work in the natural course of events that will people Texas in spite of any thing that may be written against her, I write to in form those who would come what they must expect, and I abbreviate it in Carlyle's word—"work." I go to the length he does when he calls it "God-like." We of this State are expect, and t abbreviate it in tarryies wonework." I go to the length he does when he calls it "God-like." We of this State are really tired of seeing men women and chil dren drifting about from pillar to nost, like the nomads of the desert. They come under heavy pressure of the immigration, they cu their possessions had in two to get here are heavy are never worth anything to the State as their possessions half in two to get here and they are never worth anything to the State as producers the they spend their last cent and starvation stares them in the face. This is no general, for we have men of means an energy, who come here, and who know wha they can co-with their means and their mu-cle, and settle down and do it with a will such men immediately compel respect. Bu this almiess, shiftless class that steer for the towns, and when they get there begin to we towns, and when they get there begin to wear out their second-rate clothes that they had no "the States," and talk about what they used to have, and who they were akin to, and what they used to do when they had money, and abuse the country because there is not more life in it, when they are the class who conlife in it, when they are the class who con-sume all and produce nothing, are not the ones to thrive in Texas. A good old-fashioned Tennes ean, was out here notions since and told of three fellow-Tennessears who had war-dered over the State since the war, ever on the pad, looking for a place where a man could get along without work, gathered about the old man and said "Well, if I was back in old Tennessee just like I was when I jett. I would get along without work, gathered about the old man and said "Well, if I was back in old Tennessee just like I was when I left, I would stay there." "Yes, but" said the old man, "that what's the matter; if you had been there you would not have been any better of than here, because you won't work." The old man said he meant business, and would not be here long before he would make a hole in the ground and fill it with something that would muitiply and replenish the earth. There are some who imagine that Texas is such a place as they told me Arkansas was when I was a boy and fond of molasses. The romancer in the family said that Arkansas was full of molasses ponds and candy cances, with candy sticks for paddies, and fritter trees stood out in the middle of the ponds full of buttered fritters, and all you had to do was to step into the cance and paddle out to them and shake and op. Texas will have a larger immigration from the south and northwest trans ever before for years to come; and here is the silent influence at work. The olio election mans efore for years to come; and here is the slie nt. There are millions advanced by them out. There are millions advanced by them on property in these regions on a greenback basis. The contraction in currency will continue till the value of property of all kinds will depreciate in another year at least fifty per cent, of the already low rates. Men will be sold out and forced out by scores to this states that gives every single man eighty acres, and every head of a family one hundred and sixty acres for the coming. Its true they pass on to the extreme croniler, where they must band together to fight the Comanches and Klowas, but they will tall you this company is preferable to merciless shylocks that suck up the life current of the action. The same pale that resis over comnation. The same paie that resis over commerce with you is here, only we raise ou meat and bread at home, and have no corruptate debis to pay. The cry with us i "money," as a medium of exchange. You venerable river man, Captain Jim Lee, use to say, to illustrate hard times, "Ill stamboal to say, to illustrate hard times, "Il stambou were worth two bliss a piece, I couldn't buy stage-plank." So it is with us. The time wi come, however, in the experience too of som now in existence, when the south will reform its sackcloth and ashes and will rejoid as did Job when his jossessions were restors with a hundred per cent, on his investmen That time will be when the specie men restorate the sciences and tooms of the northern the species men of the northern the species with a second to the species men or the species when the species men or the species were the sciences when the species men or the species were second to the species when the species men or the species were second to the species when the species paralyze the spindles and looms of the north that they will be driven south to save the margin on the expense of shipping and doll up the raw material so far from its base
